Instruments and choir

This Little Mass for Rest is written for an ensemble of around 19 performers.

One baryton-bass soloist (i.e. bass, but with a big enough tessitura that covers two octaves)

A small choir of 5 voices, ideally 3 singers per voice:

Soprans

Altos

Tenors

Barytons

Basses

Three instruments:

Piano

Oboe

Cello

The diagram shows a musical staff with six vocal parts: Soliste, Sopranes, Altos, Ténors, Barytons, and Basses. The staff is divided into three sections by curly braces: Sopranes (top), Altos/Ténors (middle), and Barytons/Basses (bottom). The Soliste part is at the top, followed by Sopranes, Altos, Ténors, Barytons, and Basses at the bottom. The staff has a bass clef and a common time signature.

Presentation

This work is written for a small choir of 5 voices.

The soloist rôle is major: he sustains most of the song. The choir's rôle is to answer and accompany him.

The instruments ensemble is small by design (hence “Small Mass”).

The piano takes most roles: harmony and rhythm, with also a few melodies and soloist parts.

The oboe and the cello alternate between melodic parts and song accompaniment.

They can be replaced with regard to the group possibilities.

The very first aim for this score is to propose a reading of this work. It is a work in progress, the third one, to be tested in the field.

Any comment can be sent by mail: rex.potam@gmail.com

New in this revision

This score is an update that contains changes due to remarks received on the three previous revisions, and also a few modifications listed below.

In this fourth revision, only the Benedictus changed: the central fugue was completely rewritten.

The score

The next pages contain the score of the whole work.

It is asked of the singers to adhere as much as possible to the following conventions:

- The Latin pronunciation (ecclesiastic, French, German...) is left to the ensemble, but it must be coherent for all the singers and throughout the whole work.
- Words endings: voiced consonants (« m », « n »...) are integral part of the indicated note length; on the other hand, plosive and sibilant consonants (« p », « s »...) must be performed after (particularly at the end of a phrase).

The musical score consists of eight staves. The top staff is for the B-solo part, followed by four vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) grouped together with a brace, and then two more bass parts (Bass and Baritone). The piano part is at the bottom. The vocal parts sing the lyrics 'do - na e - is re - qui - em,' with some variations in pitch and rhythm. The piano part provides harmonic support with sustained notes and chords. The score is in common time, with a key signature of one flat.
